If he does not choose to surrender his debenture by the above date, the Westminister Trust Company will on its maturity on the 1st day of July, 1922, pay him $50.00 on the delivery to it of the debenture.

The advantage to the Purchaser is that if the Company is successful in its oil operations, he may surrender his debenture and obtain shares in the Company and receive the benefit of the increased price for shares which should arise from the Company's operations, if successful, but if the Company is not successful in its operations, he can hold his debenture, and by the surrender of his debenture on the 1st day of July, 1922, receive back the $50.00 paid.

The Company has arranged with the Westminister Trust Company for the redemption at maturity of these debentures so that the purchaser will be amply protected.

The Company has purchased four applications for leases for Petroleum Oil and Natural Gas Rights in approximately 750 acres in the Pitt Meadows and Hatzic Prairie portions of New Westminister District, and it is the intention of the Company as soon as funds are available to bore for oil in these Districts, commencing in the Hatzic Prairie District.

The number of shares which have been issued or agreed to be issued as fully or partly paid up, otherwise than in cash, is $400,000 and the consideration for which the shares have been or are proposed to be issued is the assignment (subject to the consent of the Minister of the Interior and to the provisions of the regulations) to the company of four applications for leases of the Petroleum and Natural Gas Rights made under the provisions of Section 3 of the Regulations approved by Order-in-Council, dated the 19th day of January, 1914, in approximately 750 acres of land on the North side of the Fraser River, New Westminister District, of which 73 acres are East of Pitt River and the balance in the vicinity of Hatzic Prairie, and the names and addresses of the Vendors of the said rights are Mary Ann Ashby, New Westminister, widow; and Joseph Rowan Grant, New Westminister, barrister, and each of these parties is to receive 200,000 fully paid up shares in the Company.

FORM OF APPLICATION.

EUREKA OIL WELLS, LIMITED.
(Non-Personal Liability).
New Westminister, B. C.

DEAR SIR,—
We hereby apply for ..... debentures at par, and herewith enclose you ..... being at the rate of $50.00 for each debenture.
Yours truly,

You may refer to any bank in British Columbia, as to the standing of the Westminister Trust Co.

people who rowed and paddled around the Hindu ship only. saw bearded faces parted in grins, for the Hindus were quite willing to exchange jokes with the visitors but they certainly did not like some of the immigration men and specials. There were no smiles for them.

Tars Were Placid.
On board the Rainbow, the tars were as equally placid as the Hindus. The bluejackets and other ratings leaned over the side, exchanged quips with friends in boats and generally had a "stand easy."

There was a bit of a stir about 4 p.m. when half a dozen tars went on to the forecastle head.
"They are going to hoist anchor," went the rumor and the flotilla came closer but the tars were just engaged in a friendly game with four small boys in a rowboat. The youngsters pelted the sailors with hard, green apples and the bluejackets returned the fire. While all this friendly little business was going on the plaintive cry of "keep out of the range of the rifles" would come from the "special."

But it was more like a regatta than a battle. Friends visited each other on their launches and entertained at tea, rowboats hitched on to gasoline craft and got friendly tows, dainty maids reclined in canoes and wondered if there was going to be "anything horrid after all."

Lots of Visitors.
There were more than Vancouver people on the water, too. North Vancouver sent a contingent and Indian and Japanese fishermen from up the gulf came in to see the engagement. New Westminister citizens took the day off and came over, and passenger launches did a thriving trade running trips around the vessels.

As the day wore on, however, patience ceased to be a virtue in the minds of the crowd. From a spectacular standpoint it was very slow. Action was what the crowd wanted but there was no action, and although it was officially given out as "peace with honor" there are not wanting people who declared that the Hindus had again "slipped one over," and made a successful stab for—more time.

The general idea among the citizens who were afloat yesterday is that the commander of the Rainbow should have been left alone, in which case it is believed he would have gone alongside the Hindu ship, dropped the gangways, boarded her, assumed control and then opened the way for a palaver.

The Final "Pow-wow."

When the immigration officials, together with Mr. H. H. Stevens, M. P., and the Hindu shore committee walked down the dock to board the Winamac for the final talk on the Maru last night, the large throng clustered about lined their path, while the soldiers who were stationed at the shore end of Pier B jumped to their feet, tightened leggings, adjusted shoulder straps and looked over their kit to make sure everything was in readiness, for they expected that within a few minutes something would happen. But nothing did—at least not in the sense that they were thinking of.

The Winamac was the cynosure of all eyes as she slid through the water towards the Komagata. By this time every inch along the waterfront was occupied while the roofs of the large buildings also had their quota of sightseers.

The Japanese sailors made ready to lower the gangway to let their cap-officers were hoisting water over the ship's sides in barrels one Hindu came running down the gangway and tried to get a pallful. This action Mr. Quinney resented and he was not slow in telling the offender about it. But still the Hindu persisted. After he had been pushed back a couple of times the officer hit the Hindu in the face and he was taken so much by surprise that he fell back into the water. Ever since this incident Mr. Quinney has always come in for much attention from the inhabitants of the Japanese steamer and they look on the incident as a huge joke.

One yellow-turbaned head was stuck through a porthole with eyes aslant as the Irishman.
"There he is! That's the beggar that hit me on the head!" exclaimed the uniformed gentleman, and the Hindu grinned and when he saw that he had not seriously injured his victim he appeared to be greatly relieved.

Did Not Want Pictures.

The Hindus chatted with those on the launch and jabbered away among themselves. They asked that no pictures be taken and at this suggestion Mr. Stevens urged those who had cameras to stop taking snaps.
The black costumed Hindu priest peered over the rail a couple of times but would at once draw back. This is the wild-eyed and ferocious turbaned individual who had such a long wicked-looking sword which he wielded with dexterity when he tried to slash those on the Sea Lion. When Immigration Officer Quinney caught his eye the priest sought cover.

The large number on the Winamac joked and chatted with the bunch crowded about the ship's rail. The Hindus asked a hundred and one questions and laughed with glee when any reference was made to the Sunday morning fight. The Sea Lion, which came quite close with a number of militia officers, was also closely watched by those on the big boat.

Smoke Started to Come.

When Captain Yamamoto appeared at the top of the gangway his face wore a different expression than when he went on. He looked as if he had cast aside a load of worry and was again the master of his ship. He ran down the dozen steps and showed Mr. Stevens, Immigration Superintendent Malcolm R. J. Reid, Brigadier J. Duff Stuart and Inspector Hopkinson the document which meant so much to all concerned. This was the draft letter all signed up. Then all looked at the smoke stack and sure enough, whiffs of smoke could be seen clouding the sky.

The master said he expected to get away between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon. He immediately came ashore and informed his agents that he was again in charge and the owners in Japan now knew of the situation as it stands at present.

On the way back to the ship Mr. Reid and Mr. Stevens conferred as to the supplying the Hindus with provisions.

When the Winamac began to draw away from the Komagata's side many good-byes were exchanged. The leaders all paid their respects to Mr. Stevens and were very profuse in their farewells.

Joy in Farewells.

The visitors, who are now on their way to India, then started to clap their hands and prance around the deck. They showed much joy that the whole affair had been settled. As a parting farewell Officer Quinney told them they might come again—sometime.

The Hindus evidently do not bear the immigration officers any grudge for the manner in which they chatted with the officers showed that they were on the best of terms. Superintendent Reid was always referred to as "Mr. Reid and Mr. Stevens" name also and the crowd added. Some of the more venturesome spirits who caused considerable worry on Sunday morning soon lost their fear when the joking began and they joined in the fun.

It was a happy family that the government launch left when she cut the waters on her way back to the slip. All was peaceful. Smoke was beginning to appear from the funnel. Laughter and good-natured chatter was everywhere in place of indignation meetings and threats. The Japanese officers had command of the passengers.

But if there was peace and thankfulness on board the Komagata Maru there was more on the Winamac. Mr. Reid and Mr. Stevens each bore a smile of triumph.

Last night many of the immigration officers had their first good night's sleep in weeks.

RHEUMA WILL STOP URIC ACID DEPOSIT

Rheumatic Complications Checked and the "Human Sewers" Restored.

The Kidneys, Bowels and Skin are the "human sewers" which carry the impurities in the blood. When these are clogged with Uric Acid sediment lodges in the muscles and joints and Rheumatism follows. RHEUMA, the great remedy for all forms of the terrible disease, checks the deposit of Uric Acid.

"For many years I suffered with Rheumatism. I am 71 years old, but am proud to say that after using one bottle of RHEUMA the Rheumatic pains are entirely gone. I daily recom mend RHEUMA to my friends."—Wills Gott, Bridgeburg, Ont.
